

OAMR Reception home learning grid

Thursday 21st May 2020

If you only have 15 minutes spare today...

- 1) Read your child a story and ask them to show you all the sounds they can spot that they recognise as you read.
- 2) Have fun doing the phonics activity together!

Literacy

Today you are going to be a jungle explorer! Pack a bag (real or imaginary!) with all of the things you will need to take with you to survive in the jungle. You can write them in a list if you like!

You might want to draw a picture of your jungle explorers outfit and label it, or maybe a map you will take to find your way around the jungle! It's your choice which of these activities you want to do today little explorers – have fun!

Fun jungle fact!

Crocodile

I existed at the same time as dinosaurs, so I'm a pretty old species! I have nostrils on the top of my head so that I can breathe when I'm in the water.

Miss Parsons' raffle ticket challenge:

Play a family game. You could try 'What am I?' using jungle animals. Here is mine:

"I have four legs. I have soft fur but sharp teeth. I have a long tail. My fur is covered in spots."

Answer: a leopard!

Miss Parsons' Super special raffle tickets!

Phonics

Design your own jungle animal! It can be friendly or fearsome, sweet or scary, spikey or slimy... however you would like! Draw a picture of it then use your phonics to label your animal. What is its name? What does it eat? Where does it live? What would happen if you met it?

Maths

Comparing size –

Play this game to recap the vocabulary associated with comparing size – click this link

Now have a go at Part 1 of this activity, putting the animals in size order – click this link

Put the snakes in order of length - Longest to shortest. Tell your adult 2 facts about your snakes, comparing their size. "This (green) snake is longer than this (yellow) snake."

Super challenge - Draw 3 jungle animals of your own for your adult to put in the correct order. Make sure they are different sizes!
